Shooting Season Reduced by Month.

A shorter time for shooting wild ducks will be the order this year. Dates for the open season have been set by the provincial game department as from noon on September 1 to and including November 14, north of the Clearwater and Athabasca Rivers; and from September 15 to November 14, south of these rivers. This is a shortening up of one month as compared with last year.

That bag limit for ducks will be 15 a day in September, and 25 for the rest of the season, with a maximum of a 100 birds for the season. In the case of geese, the limit will be 10 a day, with a total of 30 for the season.

The restrictions this year are with a view to conservation of the bird supply which has been showing signs of depletion. Saskatchewan and Manitoba have made similar reductions, while there is a movement in some of the states across the line to make still further cuts, it having been suggested that a 50-day season should be adopted. There is a possibility, according to B. Lawton, chief game commissioner, that joint action may be considered in both Canada and the United States to shut down entirely on the wild fowl shooting during 1932.

Cost of Living Declining

Some interesting information on the downward trend of the cost of living is contained in the Labor Gazette. The totals are arrived at by averaging the retail price of twenty-nine staple articles of food together with rent and fuel in sixty-nine cities in the Dominion. It is shown that in May last the weekly cost of living for an average family of five was $18.31 as compared with $19.38 in April and $21.40 in May, 1930. This is the lowest total in a decade but is still considerably above that for May, 1914, when it was $14.21. In July, 1921, living costs for a family of five were placed at $26.92.

In the matter of food British Columbia families paid most in May last. Their average is given as $9.55 as compared with $9.19 for Saskatchewan, $7.78 for Quebec, $8.45 for Ontario, $8.02 for Manitoba, $8.33 for Alberta, and $9.05 for Nova Scotia.

The people of Western Canada who rent houses pay higher rentals than those in the east. The average by provinces for a six-room modern home per month is as follows: Nova Scotia, $24.08; New Brunswick, $25.79; Quebec, $23.89; Ontario, $28.42; Manitoba, $35; Saskatchewan, $34.50; Alberta, $31.25, and British Columbia, $26.75. These figures are for May last. The retail prices for fuel in the same month also show their differences. Thus in Alberta, kerosene well averaged $5.75 per gal., in British Columbia it was $19.15, in Saskatchewan $19.75, in Ontario $16.35, in Quebec $9.12, in New Brunswick $19.81, in Nova Scotia $9.27. Cost of transportation accounts largely for the difference.

BANK CREDIT FOR BINDER TWINE.

Premier Broderick, when in Ottawa discussed with the Dominion Government and the Banks the question of credit being made available to farmers where necessary for the purpose of purchasing binder twine. Another hailstorm visited the district last Friday. Mr. A. McNaughton received thirteen claims for damage to the west of town, but the per centage of damage was not very large.

Mr. Rupp, east of town estimated the damage on his place at 30 per cent, and the storm went over part of the area which received damage on Wednesday. The adjusters for the hail board made their adjustments Tuesday and Wednesday.

Drudgery is an Extravagance

FOR five hours today this woman patiently toiled over a washboard . . . bending, lifting, rubbing . . . doing the things a tireless little Electric Washy can do in two hours. Day after day, she dusts, sweeps, cleans . . . doing things a vacuum cleaner would do twice as fast with half the effort.

With Electricity ever at hand such drudgery is an extravagant waste of time and effort. Hours that now drag slowly by might be enjoyed in doing the things she'd rather do. The woman who wishes golden hours of freedom must first break the shackles of housework. Electricity is ready to help.

The Calgary Power Company representative in your territory can procure for you any item of electrical equipment. He will tell you about the attractive terms upon which you can purchase many electrical appliances—with a small cash payment and the balance on your monthly light bills.

A Strange Craft

Dipper Dredger Built On Tyne Has No Propelling Machinery

The strangest craft ever built on the Tyne, a dipper dredger named the Cyclops, left the river recently for the Havre (France) port authorities. The Cyclops has no propelling machinery, but her remarkable plant enables her to raise herself in the water by means of four "legs," each 70 feet long. These "legs," which can be operated rapidly, jab into the river or seabed. The dipper can tear into solid rock and scoop up 10 tons of material at a time.

China's Orphan City

Shanghai Cannot Claim Protection Of Any Single Country

The International Settlement at Shanghai, a community of more than a million people, cannot claim the protection of any single country. As a matter of fact it belongs to nobody and everybody. What will become of it when the treaty powers relinquish their extraterritorial jurisdiction in China? The question appeared in the 40,000 foreign residents of the Settlement, who govern it, as of sufficient importance to warrant them in importing a judge from the supreme court of South Africa to make a survey of their status and recommend a future for their city.

The International Settlement is described by its name. When Shanghai was opened to foreign trade by the British treaty of Nanking in 1842, a district outside of the native city wall was set apart by the Chinese Government, where foreigners might reside "without hindrance or molestation." At first there were two "concessions"—a British and a French; and of the British concession there soon sprang up an American colony. Some years later the Americans and British combined their districts and threw them open to all nationalities. The French have retained their concession and administered it through their consulate-general.

Called variously a "sink of iniquity" and "the model settlement," Shanghai is a tremendously wealthy port of trade between China and the outside world. Surrendering control of it to China in these troublous times would expose it to exploitation and disaster. The course recommended by Judge Fotham is to educate the settlement's native population in the art of municipal self-government, with a view to their eventually taking it over. The judge believes that it will be decades before the enormous investment in this orphan city on the banks of the Whangpoo can safely be entrusted to unrestricted Chinese jurisdiction.

Order Of St. John Of Jerusalem

Service Held In Westminster Abbey To Commemorate Centenary Of Revival Of Order

The Duke of Connaught, Grand Prior of the Order, the Duke and Duchess of York, and other members of the Royal Family were present at a service held in Westminster Abbey to commemorate the revival in Great Britain 100 years ago of the work of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem. The centenary address, delivered by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Prelate of the Order, was broadcast throughout the world.

The congregation included members of all grades of the Order, and the numerous uniforms added colour to an imposing scene. The band of the Grenadier Guards played before the service began. The men of the Ambulance Divisions of the Order were seated in the South Transept; the women of the Nursing Divisions marched in procession to the same part of the Abbey from the West Door, led by the Duchess of York, their commandant-in-chief, who then took her place in the Sanctuary. There she was joined some minutes later by the Duke of York, in the uniform of the Royal Air Force, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, Princess Helena, Victoria, and Princess Marie Louise.

At the conclusion of the service the Grand Prior and Chapter General, who were seated in the cloisters by a guard of honour of the Westminster School O.T.C., went to the Great Hall of Westminster, School, which had been lent to the Order for the occasion.

And there presided over the annual General Assembly of the Order. The Sub-Prior read messages of congratulation from the Commandery in South Africa and the branches of the Order in Australia and New Zealand, and an address was presented to the Grand Prior from the branches of the Order in Sweden.

The Sub-Prior then read a message from Mr. Bennett, the Prime Minister of Canada, announcing that, in view of the good work done by the Order, the Canadian Government had decided to exempt it specially from the scope of the resolution of the "Canadian" House of Commons, in conformity with which the King has refused from bestowing any titles or honours upon his Canadian subjects. In consequence of this commendation, his Majesty had been pleased to invest several Canadians with the insignia of various grades in the Order recently at Buckingham Palace—London Times, England.

Ask Federal Aid

Want Assistance In Carrying Out Public Works In Saskatoon

Federal assistance in carrying out a public works program in excess of $2,000,000 will be asked by Saskatoon as an unemployment relief measure to meet requirements here for the next twelve months, Mayor John W. Huir has stated.

A payroll of $70,000 per month for about a year would be assured if the suggested request is acceded to by the federal authorities. "This would be sufficient, the mayor believes, to provide employment for all jobless married men in Saskatoon. No plans are being made for single unemployed, the contention being expressed by the mayor that their problem was a purely federal matter."

Hospital Opened At Chesterfield Inlet

Will Serve Nomadic Eskimo and Trappers In Far North

Bishop Targuetti and four nurses, members of the Grey Nuns Sisterhood, arrived at Churchill completing a long journey from Quebec by Canadian National Railways. The party was on route to Chesterfield Inlet, 500 miles north of this Hudson Bay port, where the farthest north hospital on the continent opened last week. The veteran Roman Catholic churchman, known throughout the continent as the "Bishop of the Arctic," left with the nurse in his 25-foot motor boat on the hazardous trip along the rocky west coast of Hudson Bay.

With the opening of the hospital His Lordship sees the realization of a dream he has had for nearly two decades in the barren country of northern Canada. The hospital will serve the nomadic Eskimos and the dozens of trappers that search for fur on the northern fringe of civilization. Educational courses in hygiene are planned for the younger generations of Eskimos.

Interesting War Relics

Regina Man Has Complete Set Of German Plaques

Interesting, if grim, relics of the passions and hatreds stirred by the Great War, are brought to light by J. H. Hall, of Regina, into whose possession has come a complete set of reproductions of the plaques struck by the Government of Germany commemorating various outstanding events during the dark days of 1914-1918.

The plaques were distributed to the citizenry and soldiery of Germany with the object of bolstering morale and stirring up hate, chiefly against England. They depict, among other things, the sinking of the Lusitania, Lord Northcliffe as a disseminator of lies, the triumphant German soldier conquering a figure symbolic of the Allies. All the plaques have considerable artistic merit.

Without a Country

"I am a woman without a country," declared a delegate at the Women's Co-Operative Guild Congress at Cheltenham, England, in an appeal to the government to allow a woman to retain her nationality after marriage. She was married to a Swede, who died three years ago. Through long residence in England her husband had lost his own citizenship, and by her marriage to him she now had no nationality at all.

"I'd be proud to be thought in the same class," related Nick. "He's a real man. And we'd be suffering now if he hadn't known that most of these islands have no running streams. He saved every drop of water aboard the 'Sea Bird'; but if we're not picked up in another week someone has got to go—or die a wretch."

"But those small boats—how long would they live if another hurricane came up?"

"Five minutes, perhaps; but what else is there to do when the yacht has gone to pieces on the bar?" Myer could send the men, of course, but I'd rather be doing something—yet you object if I even build a fire? Do you want to spend the rest of your life here?"

"I hate it! And you're not even decently polite."

Her childishness made Nick grin, and restored his good humor.

"I wonder," he said, "if Robinson Crusoe was a Chesterfield? I'm sorry if my manners offend you, Angela, but I'll admit that I feel on edge today, and want to get off by myself. I can't get Gay out of my thoughts, and he's what she must be suffering. Perhaps the 'Sea Bird' wasn't mentioned in the papers, but it's long past the time when I should have been back, and it makes me crazy—it makes me wild—to think—"

He broke off suddenly, and strode away. Angela started after him, then stopped and looked down at her clean white shoes. For no toilet requisite—nothing that could add to her personal adornment, even shoe polish, had been left behind when the 'Sea Bird' was abandoned. Angela preferred hunger and thirst to looking unattractive. She gazed with scorn at Amy Myer's unpurified Oxford; at Nick's collarless neck; at the Colonel's soiled Palm Beach suit. She rebelled at the thought that in another month her own clothes would begin to appear grimy. Now, although she really longed for a tramp with Nick, she could not endure the thought of soiling her dress; and he was evidently in no mood to wait while she changed to something suitable.

Angela sank down on a seat that the despised captain had cleverly constructed from a barrel, and gazed gloomily out to sea. It was a scene of enchanting loveliness, but she looked upon it with blind eyes. She was thinking of Nick, angrily, and with a sense of helplessness. She admitted that she had never worked so hard to gain a conquest—yet she had evidently failed. She felt baffled—humiliated—enraged, and with it all, miserably unhappy. It made her furious that a quiet little woman like Gay Hastings could hold a man captive—her own husband, too, whom she hadn't seen for weeks! Who was she anyway, to have married a man like Nick who had such wonderful possibilities? What a glorious lover he would make! He was better looking than any man Angela knew. He was handsome even without a collar, and how many men could stand that test? Take him away from provincial Bakersville, that stupid hulk, and his stupor wife and babies, and he would go far—get anywhere. But to see him wasting himself providing for a family that grew with indecent rapidity.

Angela's lip curled in disgust. Jim had implied that she could not succeed. Her face grew hard. She would succeed! She would win Nick Hastings if only to show Jim Halliday that she hadn't lost her charm. After all, a desert island was not a bad setting. Her prey could not escape; give her a month more. . . . She never failed. . . . and perhaps . . .

Angela smiled, but her face was as forbidding, not her eyes innocent as she looked out to sea.

As for Nick, he tramped on desperately, his mind filled with regrets that he knew were futile. He had done what at the time had seemed the sensible thing to do, yet he was torn with the thought that he should have gone home at the completion of his business. The old nervousness that had been his before leaving Bakersville, was back upon him. People irritated him, especially Angela. He wished she would transfer her attentions to the Colonel, who would doubtless appreciate them. It might keep him from talking so persistently about the coast of Maine, a subject, which, for some mysterious reason always put Angela on edge.

Nick wondered, as he tramped along, if her distaste for the subject had anything to do with that horrible story which the Colonel had recounted the night before the hurricane. The right Angela had kissed him. He had hardly thought of it since. There had been too much else to think about; yet the whole thing was queer; her behaviour after the story—the midnight confidence she had forced upon him, and the kiss—maddened him. It struck him for the first time that Angela was subtle, and he hated subtle people. What was it Gay had once said about not trusting Angela Halliday?

Gay! Always, the thought of her was like the touch of a cool hand; but the realization of what she was suffering rushed back again, and he could have wept. Suddenly, realizing that he had walked too rapidly in the hot sun, he sought the shade of a clump of palms, and threw himself down, looking out hopelessly across the blue—searching the horizon for the ship that did not come.

After a while his gaze crept back to the land, and what looked like a scrap of paper caught in the underbrush not far away. Who could have dropped it? He was a long way from camp, though a couple of days ago he had come here with Angela and Amy. Pure curiosity made him arise and grasp it. In the wilderness any thing pertaining to civilization is of interest. It was evidently a sheet out of a letter to which there was no beginning, and no end. The writing was unfamiliar, but instantly he saw Gay's name and read:

"Gay Hastings' baby coming in September—first part, and Nick don't know a thing about it. She wouldn't tell because he wasn't feeling well, and she thought if he knew he'd think he couldn't leave her. She don't look real smart, and I got a notion Dr. Bennett's worried. I asked him plain out, but he didn't say much. That's the way he is—always acts like it was none of my business. Anyhow I hope Nick'll get back soon. She nearly died last time, and those boys is getting a handful though old Mr. Bartlett helps her a lot. Thought you'd like to know we was all well. Little Martin in a flash Nick understood. This was a dash from Julie Nipper, who had a passion for writing letters. It was a letter to Angela, Julie disliked Angela, but she would write to Stefan himself if she thought he would reply. She watched for the postman as a cat watches a mouse. Gay, out of pure sympathy, was always sending her picture postcards when they were away.

Nick sat down hastily. What did this mean, anyway? He read again, about this time: "Gay Hastings' baby is coming in September." In his surprise he thought: "It's a lie; but why should Julie invent a yarn like that?" Then he saw light. Why, it was true! Of course it was true! That was exactly what Gay would have done if she thought that he needed rest and freedom from anxiety. What a dunce he had been not to have guessed! A host of memories crowded back upon him by which he might have known he had not been absorbed in his own worries. And the things he had said about expenses—about contracting doctors' bills—about their keeping well for the next year. . . . Of course she wouldn't tell him till she had to. And now—what was she thinking—what was she suffering—alone—feeling what she had gone through for little Nick—thinking—perhaps, that he was never coming back to her. . .

Nick turned, burying his face in his arms, longing for the relief of tears that would not stir. Then came a thought that filled him with blazing anger: Angela had known! No mail had reached them since leaving Kingston. She had had this letter all the time, and had let him start out upon this cruise knowing that his place was at home. How could she? Had she no sympathy for Gay—no understanding of her need of him? Even though Angela had never had a child she should have known instinctively that, had he understood, no cruise however alluring would have tempted him.

September—the first of September, and it was new July. It might be months before they were picked up. He arose shakily, filled with an insane desire to put his hands on Angela's slender throat—that lovely throat that made such lovely music—and choke her till she begged for mercy. He started toward camp, then stopped, appalled at his own anger. He must calm down before he faced his friends. He must control himself before he talked with Angela.

He turned about, and began his patrol where he had left it off, walking rapidly, his thoughts in a wild chaos. He looked neither to right nor left. Beauties that should have stirred him he passed unnoticed. Suddenly he realized that he was breathless, and that he had reached the point of land where he had meant to pile brush for a signal fire. He paused, and looking out to sea, uttered an exclamation of incredulity. He shaded his eyes with his hand for a long moment; then, turning with furious haste, began making a pile of leaves—of twigs—of branches—of anything that would burn, working like mad before he stopped to gaze once more across the water.

Faint, almost imperceptible, yet nearer than it had been before, a final spiral of smoke was visible against the horizon.

Flaws in Steel Rails

Remarkable Instruments Detect Defects in Track While Moving At a Fair Speed

Looking into steel rails for invisible flaws, two remarkably equipped cars have been travelling over western lines of the two Canadian transcontinental railways during the past few weeks.

Moving at a fair speed over the rails these robot detectives mark the invisible faults that might cause a split rail and forever damn the guilty rails in the eyes of section crews by automatically painting them white. Up in the car the needle of one of the instruments is tracing a continuous line on paper. When the rails are good the line is comparatively level. When a flaw is traversed the inflexible needle bobs, or ducks, and down goes the white splash of paint.

Invented by the late Mr. Sperry, these cars are leased to railways by the Sperry Rail Detector Company, of New York. Each carries its own chief operator and motorman. Over every section of track covered, the local section foreman follows with his gang, to make immediate replacements.

WIND FROM THE SEA

Tonight the wind is from the sea. And bears the long tale of salt to me. Just here, the honeysuckle grows, And there the treble with the rose stands close beside the garden gate To tempt the passer with its freight Of wine-sweet, petalled loveliness. The daisies in their snowy dress Along the pathways nod and bend. As gracious women greet a friend. Yet when the wind is from the sea It brings strange messages to me; I feel, within, a sudden need Of stinging spray and drifting weed, Of sea-scented and sea breeze Tossed lightly where the strong tide flows.

Ah, I would know the press and surge Of ocean in its restless urge! Tonight the wind is from the sea; What can the roses say to me?

Aeromobile May Be Speedy

Vehicle Driven By Air Propeller Invented in Germany

Great speed at low cost is expected from the aeromobile, the machine recently invented by two German inventors. The vehicle is described by them as an automobile driven by an air propeller. The air screw lies horizontally on the back part of the chassis. Above it are several parallel plane surfaces forming a sort of lattice-work arrangement, the angles of which may be altered. The air stream produced by the propeller breaks through these surfaces, providing the driving power.

Little Helps For This Week

"The Lord bless thee, and keep thee; the Lord make Thy face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee." Numbers vi. 24-25.

In having all things, and not Thee, what have I?

Not having Thee, what have my labors got?

Let me enjoy but Thee, what further crave I?

And having Thee alone, what have I lost?

I wish not sea, nor land; nor would I be Possessed of heaven, heaven unpossessed of Thee.

—Francis Quarles.

There is no holiness if the Lord withdraw His presence; no wisdom if His Spirit ceases to direct. In our own nature we are as unsettled as the sand upon the mountain; but in God we have the stability of the throne in heaven. Kindle, O Lord, our hearts with light and life by the holy fire of Thy love and blessing.

—Thomas A. Kempis.

Miller's Worm Powders are a pleasant medicine for worm-infested children, and they will take it without objection. When directions are followed it will not injure the most delicate child, as there is nothing of an injurious nature in its composition. They will speedily rid a child of worms and restore the health of the little sufferers whose vitality has become impaired by the attacks of these internal pests.

Dehydrated Apples

Stocks On Hand In the Okanagan Valley Now Practically Exhausted

Stocks of dehydrated apples in the Okanagan Valley have practically been exhausted. Only very small amounts are in the hands of packers. Since fresh apples have not been available there has been a good demand for the dehydrated product. Reports from the east are to the effect that only small quantities are now on hand, not over 2,000 boxes, all told, are in the hands of evaporators.

Many residents complain of their cabbage being poor this year, a number of plants having plenty of leaves but no hearts. An amateur gardener from Calgary suggested sprinkling the cabbage with salt and since then the outer leaves have folded up and new hearts are appearing.

The monthly meeting of the W.I. was held Thursday last in Community Hall, when business for the forthcoming school fair, etc., was discussed. A baby clinic is to be held in the hall September 10th. Several members gave reports on the constitution convention held at Carstairs recently. Much regret was felt by the members in the passing away of Mr. R. Fulton who was at one time a resident here. Mrs. Fulton was a very active member of the W.I. After the meeting, Mesdames Blain and Oldham acted as hostesses.

Fear Shortage Of Laying Hens

A shortage of flocks of laying hens in Canada appears to be a probability should the marketing of hens continue during the balance of the season at the rate which has characterized this movement since early this year, states a report issued today by the Dominion department of agriculture.

It is doubtful if ever before the movement of hens to market has been so steady throughout the year, or so heavy, as is the case at present," the report continues.

"The areas of the west which are being affected by drought are marketing hens heavily, and two carloads from the west have arrived in Montreal within the past week and a half. Montreal has received carloads of live poultry from the west before, but they have been so few as to warrant them being classed as unusual.

"It is probable the price is having some bearing on the situation, as values of live poultry generally are now from three to five cents below this time last year.
